ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I would like to thank all the relatives who were so very nice in giving me information and helping me to find out about the Brian Family. They are a wonderful bunch of people (I know, I married one of them).

Especially I thank Agnes Montgomery Wilson for the Bible Record and photographs, Jessie Aubrey Montgomery for facts about the Alice Brian Montgomery family, Russell Slaton for Eula Brian Slaton family, W. D. Brian for information on several family lines, Esther Brian Wright and Janis Brian Rowe for James Fowler Brian family information, Marie Bryant for for information on the D. Cauley Brian family, Mrs. Houston Brian for the Sankie Brian line, Dorothy Peterson Clack for Ben Brian family information, and to Tammy Biggers Dilday for getting information from York, South Carolina.

Thanks to our daughter, Dee Anne Brian, for always having time check facts and make copies of papers at the History Commission in Little Rock, and also to our son Eddie Brian for taking his time to put all of the information on a computer.

Thanks everyone.

James Brian

James Brian, our Revolutionary War ancestor, was born in Ireland around 1760 and emigrated to America at a young age.

James served as a private in McKenzie Troop, Hill Regiment, Sumters Brigade, from April 1782 to October 1, 1784. When discharged from the army he received 94 pounds sterling as his bounty pay with 6 pounds, 11 shillings and 7 pence interest. In 1786 James received a 247 acre land grant on Mill Creek in York County, South Carolina.

James married his first wife, name unknown, about 1777. She died before 1793, leaving James with three sons and three daughters. Sometime around 1793 James married Mary Jane Jones, who had had been previously married and had three sons. Together James and Mary had another four sons and one daughter

Our predecessor, James Brian, Jr., was the first child born to James and Mary. James Jr. was born on June 1, 1794 in York County, South Carolina.

James Brian died November 28, 1840, leaving an estate of $8,000. Mary Jane died December 3, 1842. Both are buried at Mill Creek Churchyard, York, South Carolina.

James Brian, Jr.

James Brian, Jr. was born on June 1, 1794 in a section of York County, South Carolina, formed by Crowder's Creek and the Catawba River and known as the "Point". He was the first child and the first son born to James and Mary Jane Jones Brian. James lived his entire life in this area three miles northeast of York, South Carolina. Around 1820 James married Susannah Collins in York County, South Carolina. Susannah had been born in Lincoln County, North Carolina on October 4, 1805. James and Susannah had five sons and two daughters. Aaron Wilson Brian, our ancestor, was the fourth child born to the couple.

James served 6 months from October 1, 1814 to March 7, 1815 in the War of 1812, receiving $8.00 per month pay. He was a private in Company B, Capt. William Kindricks Company of Infantry, Lt. Col. Hugh Means Regiment, South Carolina Militia. James made his first rendezvous with his military company at Lipsey's old field. In 1815 James was discharged at Charleston, South Carolina, 210 miles from his home in York County. He drew $4.00 travel pay (25¢ a day for 8 days travel) plus two rations at 18¢ each for a total of $4.32 for his journey from Charleston to York County.

James was elected sheriff from 1836 to 1840 and then 1840 to 1844, being unable to serve two consecutive terms. James was well regarded in private as well as public life and his obituary stated that he could have been elected to any county office he desired. After his second term as sheriff, he retired to his farm where he lived the next thirty years.

Susannah died on November 18, 1870 and James died on October 4, 1878. Both are buried in Union Churchyard, York County, South Carolina.

At his death James left no will for the disposition of his property. However, James had outlived all of his children except a son, Aaron Wilson

Brian, and a daughter, Martha Jane Bell. At the time of his death, James owned 1500 acres of land but had few personal assets or cash. As there were outstanding debts against James, the sheriff of York County seized the land for payment. Martha Jane Bell, his daughter, filed suit to recover the land so that it could be sold and James' debts settled. However, there was an apparent dispute between Martha Jane, her husband Thomas Jefferson Bell and her nephews Mart, Jimmie and Jerome.

Aaron Wilson Brian

Aaron Wilson Brian, son of James Brian, Jr. and Susannah Collins Brian, was born on March 27, 1827. He was the fourth child, third son, of the couple. Around 1846 Aaron married Jane E. C. of Lancaster County, South Carolina. The couple had three children in South Carolina, and around 1855 the family moved to Camden, Ouachita County, Arkansas.

Aaron and his family are listed in the 1860 census as living in Taylor township, Columbia County, Arkansas (now part of Ouachita County), with Aaron's occupation being dentist. The family lore is that Aaron was a dentist and learned some medical skills while serving in the Civil War. He was apparently well read and had a gift for helping the ill. Aaron also had an inventive bend to his nature, and on June 15, 1869 was granted U.S. Patent #91,206 for a cotton seed planter.

On all censuses except 1860 Aaron's profession is listed as farmer. He apparently grew cotton and traveled to New Orleans each year to sell his cotton. While Aaron was gone to New Orleans, Jane would manage the farm during his absence of several months. By 1870 Aaron and his family were living in Camden, Ouachita County, Arkansas, but during the 1870's moved back into the county.

Aaron enlisted in Little Rock on the side of the Confederate forces in the Civil War. He served from June 29, 1861 to May of 1862 as a Third and Second Lieutenant in Company H, 3rd Regiment, Arkansas Calvary under General Bergivin.

After their move to Arkansas, Aaron and Jane had five more sons. Jane died in January of 1878 with consumption at age 47. Aaron married Nancy Mitchell Bradshaw July 23, 1878. Aaron and Nancy together had six children. On their marriage licence Aaron is listed as Dr. A. W. Brian. Nancy had four children from her prior marriage; Thomas Bradshaw (b. ca 1863), Laura Bradshaw (b. ca 1867), Mollie Bradshaw (b. ca 1869), and Harriet Bradshaw (b. ca 1870).

Aaron died December 11, 1906 and Nancy on May 24, 1925. Both are buried in unmarked graves in the Pleasant Ridge Cemetery, Ouachita County AR.

United States Patent Office.

A. W. BRIAN, OF OUACHITA COUNTY, ARKANSAS.

Letters Patent No. 91,206, dated June 13, 1893.

IMPROVEMENT IN COTTON-SEED PLANTER.

The Schedule referred to in these Letters Patent and making part of the same.

To all whom it may concern:

Be it known that I, A. W. BRIAN, of Ouachita county, State of Arkansas, have invented a certain new and useful Improvement in Cotton-Seed Planters; and I do hereby declare the following to be a full, clear, and exact description of the same, reference being had to the annexed drawing, making a part of this specification.

My object, in the creation of my invention, has been to produce a machine or implement which will, at one and the same time, as it is drawn through the field, cut a furrow or trench in the ground, cut and scrape away the grass and weeds for a considerable space on each side of said trench, and throw them out of the way; plant the cotton-seed at prescribed and regular intervals, and then cover the same; and

My invention, hence, consists of a combination of a peculiarly-formed plow, provided on each of its sides with diverging scraper-wings or blades, with a cylindrical or barrel recipient and seed-planter, and a loose coverer that follows behind the same.

But my invention will be better understood by referring to the drawing, on which—

Figure 1 is a perspective view of the same, as when ready for use, a part of the beam being, however, unseen, and a portion of the handles cut off; and

I construct a strong frame, consisting of a beam, A, an upright standard, B, handles C C', a piece, D, projecting in front, under and in the line of the beam A, from the lower extremity of the standard B, and a cross-bar, E.

The plow or trench-cutter consists of a bifurcated bar, the two arms or forks of the same being marked, respectively, F F', which terminates in a downwardly-projecting and peculiarly-formed point, F".

This plow is secured to the frame, as shown on the drawing; that is to say, the upright part F', at its upper end, is secured to the beam A by means of a mortise, into which it is inserted, and therein keyed, and to the bar D, by means of a notch in the front extremity of the latter, into which it is fitted, and in such manner as to bring the part F in close contact with said bar D, on its lower edge, throughout its whole length.

The rear extremity of the part F is turned up, as shown at c, and secured, by means of a bolt, to the rear end of said bar.

It will be observed that the bar D, although very much wider at or on its top, is of the same width as the part F, where they come together, and that hence the two together present the form of a triangle.

This formation secures a sufficient width of trench to prevent the deposition of seed outside the same, and, at the same time, a sufficient packing of the earth to keep the trench from filling up, until the seed has been put into it.

The diverging scraper-blades G G' are secured in the position shown, by means of the transverse bar G", which is connected or fastened to the standard B, by means of a screw-bolt, and bolts at their front ends, which take into the bar D, as shown at d.

The divergence of these scraper-blades G G' may be greater or less than as shown on the drawing, as circumstances may require.

The blades G G' are so formed as to cut the grass and weeds from their front to their rear ends, and to serve as mould-boards, to throw off everything cut, out of the line of their path.

Pivoted to the cross-bar E, by means of proper journals at the two extremities of said bar, is the frame H, in which is mounted the cylindrical recipient and planter K, in such manner that the same will revolve by contact with the ground, whenever the machine is in actual use.

The articulation of the frame H, that results from its pivot-connection with the cross-bar E, effects a ready adaptation of the recipient and planter K to any inequalities or irregularities in the surface of the ground over which it passes.

This recipient and planter of the seed is provided with a hinged section, I, at one point of its circumference, which serves as a door or opening through which the seed is introduced.

The clamp g and staple h, or any equivalent device, secures this section I in a closed position, and also presents a quick means of opening the same whenever the recipient is to be filled or replenished with seed.

At such intervals apart as it is desired to plant the cotton-seed, the shell of the cylinder K is perforated with round holes, i, for depositing or planting the seed in the ground.

To control the deposition through these apertures, each one of them is provided with a means through which it can be partially or wholly closed. These means consist of thin plates, m, secured on the inner surface of the perimeter or shell of the cylinder, by means of pivot-pins n, (see fig. 2, on which they can be moved, so as to shut partially or wholly, or open the said aperture.

Still further to subserve the same purpose, and prevent the crowding of the seed through the apertures, or the choking of the latter, blocks O are placed over them, in such manner as not to interfere with the operation of the covering-plates m, which, being provided with apertures p, that are placed in precise line with the holes i, have the effect of extending the length of the same, and thus of preventing an accumulation and packing of the seed at and around the points of their escape, as well as the too profuse delivery of them.

A number of cylinders K may be provided, of different sizes, and punctured with delivering-apertures, at varying distances apart, so as to reduce or increase the distance of the hills from each other, in order to suit soils of different degrees of fertility, or the notions of different planters in this regard, &c.

A chain or cord, S, being secured to the rear cross-bar of the frame H, in connection with hooks s s in the handles, affords the means of elevating the cylinder K off the ground when it is not in use, and thus of preventing the same from revolving and planting at such times, notwithstanding the machine may be in motion, and the delivering-apertures i unobscured.

This chain-link or cord S, (for it may be either,) affords, also, a means for preventing the precipitation of the cylinder into ditches or the like, when the machine is lifted over the same, and any consequent disarrangement of the parts which might result from such accident.

Connected to the frame H, by any proper flexible straps or means, R, in such manner as to follow just in the rear of said frame, is a transverse loose covering-bar or drag, W, which performs the office of covering the seed in an effectual and thorough manner.

The operation of my machine has been sufficiently indicated in describing it, and I need, therefore, only say further, that it has been thoroughly tested, and proved to be capable of fulfilling the objects for which it is designed in a far better manner than any cotton-planter of which I have any knowledge.

Having thus described my invention,

What I claim, and desire to secure by Letters Patent, is—

The combination of the plow Y F F', when provided with the scraper-wings or blades G G', with a cylindrical seed recipient and planter, K, and covering-drag W, when all these parts are constructed and arranged relatively to each other, and operate substantially as herein described, for the purpose set forth.

A. W. BRIAN.

George M. Brian

George M. Brian was the second child born to Aaron Wilson Brian and his wife, Jane, in South Carolina. George came to Arkansas with his parents around 1855. He was a bachelor and served as Postmaster for Finn Switch, Ouachita County, Arkansas. The post office operated at Finn Switch from 1899 to 1918. George built a small cabin on the land his family owned between the Mt. Holly and Old Wire roads in Ouachita County, Arkansas. George was considered by many to be a miser and kept $200 to $300 in a safe in his cabin. One night George was killed by a blow to the head and his money stolen. The robbers attempted to conceal the crime by turning over an oil lamp and burning George's cabin. However, the lamp burned through the floor of the cabin and went out. The crime was discovered and Authur Ellis, the sheriff of Ouachita County at the time, who investigated George's death. Sheriff Ellis found the club which had been used to kill George and upon examining it, determined that the club had been cut by a left-handed person. Sheriff Ellis kept up with day to day events in Camden (county seat of Ouachita County) by observing the streets of the town from a catwalk which connected the Jail to the Court House. Several times he had seen Johnny Barnes, a white man, and Bully Sheperd, a black man, talking in the wagon yard at the corner of Adams and Jackson street. He knew that Bully was left-handed and felt that both were likely to be involved in the crime. Eventually they were arrested and tried for the murder of George. Johnny Barnes had a witness who swore that Johnny was in town soon after the crime was apparently committed. During the trial the entire jury walked from the Court House to where George lived (7 or 8 miles) to see if Johnny could have committed the crime and walked to town by the time his witness said he was there. The jury found that it was possible for Johnny to have committed the crime and been in town at the time his witness said he was. Both men were convicted of the murder of George.

Jerome Wilson Brian

Jerome Wilson Brian was born in Ouachita County, Arkansas on October 7, 1862, the son of Aaron Wilson and Jane Brian. Jerome married Sarah Ellen "Sallie" Bradshaw, daughter of Richard and Mary Bradshaw, on September 8, 1881. Sallie died before 1884 and on October 5, 1884, Wilson married Jane Dean, daughter of Jesse Embree and Pricilla Hopkins Dean. The Dean family had moved to Ouachita County from Clarke County, Alabama in 1845.

Wilson and Jane operated a grocery store at Finn Switch, Ouachita County, Arkansas for several years. Prior to 1918 there was a post office (where Wilson's brother, George served as Postmaster), saw mill, school and their store located at Finn Switch. When the sawmill closed, they moved to Camden, Ouachita County, Arkansas where their son, John Embree Brian, bought property on Viser street. It was on this property that John built a house and grocery store for his parents. They operated the store until their death. Both are buried in unmarked graves in the Dean-Bradshaw Cemetery on California Avenue in Camden, Arkansas.

Junius Bragg Brian

Junius Bragg Brian was a master carpenter and worked in Camden, Arkansas, and the surrounding area. In the 1910 census, Junius and his family are listed as living on Cleveland Avenue in Camden, with his profession as carpenter. One house that Junius built was an antebellum home on Clifton Street in Camden. This house later became known as the Maud Crawford house, following the disappearance of Mrs. Crawford, a local attorney, in 1957. Since that time, no clues regarding the disappearance have been unearthed.

FIFTH GENERATION

John Embree Brian

Jerome Wilson Brian_Jane Elizabeth Dean

John Embree Brian

John Embree Brian was in the log hauling business in his younger days. He and his cousins Junius and Watson Dean had the finest of mules used to haul the large logs all up and down the Ouachita River. The logs were dumped in the river and floated to mill in Calion. When the oil boom hit Smackover, he hauled oil field equipment to Smackover.

After his mother's and father's death, he took over the grocery store on Viser Street and raised his family there. He sold the store shortly before his death on Oct 4, 1952.

Elvin E. Brian

Elvin Eugene Brian entered the U.S. Navy at a very young age. He was on board one of the ships that went up the Yangtze River in China in July 1937, when Japan attacked China. The ship that Elvin was on escaped. During World War II, he also saw action in Africa, Sicily, Italy, and Normandy. He remained with the Normandy invasion until the Army crossed the Rhine River in Germany. Elvin was then transferred to the Pacific and was aboard the U.S.S. Missouri and piped General McArthur aboard for the signing of the Japanese surrender. Johnny Edward (Eddie) Brian, Jr. has the silver boatswain pipe he used. At one time Elvin was the youngest Veteran of a Foreign War in Arkansas.

Johnny Edward Brian

Johnny Edward Brian was in the Army during WWII, from February 21, 1945 to November 14, 1946. He was inducted into 4th Infantry, Company M as a private. Following the surrender of Japan, Johnny served there for one year as a truck driver hauling supplies. He also participated in the removal of Japanese ordnance from ammunition dumps in the mountains.
